These levels of risk in agencies should be a great concern to all who believe in open and accountable government. Second, senior agency leaders must work with NARA, OMB, and GSA, as well as with groups like the CIO Council, the Federal Records Council, and the Federal Web Managers Council, to de-velop the IT tools necessary to manage electronic records. The technical challenges associated with developing the IT tools for records management are not insignificant; however, these tools do not exist today because, in my view, the Federal Government has not deemed recordkeeping a high priority in IT systems. The Federal Government spends over 70 billion annually on informa-tion technology that, to a large degree, creates or receives Federal records in some form. Developing cost-effective electronic records management tools that work and then integrating them into agen-cy IT systems needs to be a high priority. In conclusion, as Archivist of the United States...
